"THE LAST DAYS OF STONEWALL JACKSON"

Chris Mackowski, Ph.D. begin the narrative on the night of May 2, 1863, following Confederate General Thomas Jonathan "Stonewall" Jackson's famous flank attack at the Battle of Chancellorsville. It details Jackson being mistakenly shot by his own men (friendly fire), his subsequent medical care, and the tense national vigil as he fought pneumonia at Guinea Station. It follows his funeral, the unusual history of his amputated arm, the preservation of the site of his death (now the Stonewall Jackson Shrine), and the "what-if" scenarios surrounding Confederate fortunes had he survived.

Chris Mackowski, Ph.D., is the editor-in-chief and co-founder of Emerging Civil War and the series editor of the award-winning Emerging Civil War Series, published by Savas Beatie. He has worked as a historian for the National Park Service at Fredericksburg & Spotsylvania National Military Park, where he gives tours at four major Civil War battlefields (Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Wilderness, and Spotsylvania), as well as at the building where Stonewall Jackson died. Chris has authored or co-authored nearly two dozen books and edited a half-dozen essay collections on the Civil War.
